PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad, Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt returned to Trinidad today for the first time in 32 years. Enroute to Buenos Aires for the Pan-American conference, the president reached Port of Spain aboard the cruiser Indianapolis. The Indianapolis and its convoy, the U. S. S. Chester, hove to in the harbor early this morning and tied up to the tanker Salinas.

A few minutes later, an official deputation headed by the British deputy governor of Trinidad and his wife, Mrs. A. W. Seymour, boarded the Indianapolis to pay its respects to the president. Also in the party were the Hon. A. S. Mavrogordato, inspector-general of the General Constabulary and an American consul and Mrs. W. Messmer.

PA NEWS OBSERVES

Workmen gave the finishing touches to Englewood avenue paving on Friday when the rut at the intersection of Highland and Englewood avenues, made when a sewer trench was dug a short time ago, was repaired. A surface coating of amestite was placed over the trench depression and it appears to have been well done.

Quite a large number of hunters were noted heading for the woods, with guns and dogs, this morning. The small game hunting season is fast drawing to a close.

While you wouldn't think such is the case, from observations in the city of New Castle, there is considerable snow in some of the ravines in the nearby farm districts. Along the highways not far removed from New Castle, there are still quite noticeable accumulations of snow.

Pa News is glad to welcome the veterans of the Erie & Ashtabula division of the Pennsylvania railroad for their annual reunion. This is the 16th annual gathering of these veterans in New Castle, and each year the event proves most enjoyable.

Santa Claus is here, toylands are open, and the great holiday shopping rush is gathering momentum. Stores are prepared for record business during the next few weeks in New Castle and Lawrence county.

Their "victory dinner" is planned for Tuesday evening.

MADRID, Nov. 21.—The siege of Madrid lulled into a comparative calm today but the city grew more tense as reports spread that the rebels were about to launch a new, gigantic offensive in a super effort to rout the stubborn defenders.

The rebels, it was believed in Loyalist quarters, were bringing up newly received foreign artillery and new troops drawn in from other front in preparation for a terrific attack probably to be directed first at all the University city sector.

The loyalist defense Junta speeded up evacuation of women and children in face of the expected new onslaught.

Says Ethiopia Is Biding Time

Expect Italy To Become Involved In Major Warfare

By MILTON HARKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Confident Italy's Spanish policy will embroil her in a major conflict, Ethiopia is biding her time before striking for freedom.

This flat declaration was made to International News Service today by Dr. Malaku E. Bayen, cousin and special emissary of Emperor Haile Selassie. Here to raise funds, Dr. Bayen expressed belief Italy, "gloating in victory over an ill-prepared foe, is spilling more trouble."

"And when Italy finds herself distracted from us by a more potent enemy, Ethiopia will strike quickly to regain the freedom she held against aggressors for 4,000 years," Dr. Bayen declared.

"If we can get the necessary supplies we can put at least 1,000,000 fighting men in the field, maybe 2,000,000."
"Italy claims she has 600,000 men in Ethiopia. That is an exaggeration, but she will have to withdraw a great part of her invading force if she finds herself at war in Europe."
"Italy is having a more difficult task subjugating Ethiopia than she would admit. More than 60,000 warriors under Dejazmach Fikra Mariah are carrying on guerrilla warfare within ten miles of Addis Ababa."
"Every week 700 to 800 wounded Italians are being evacuated through the Port of Djibuti. They are being moved at night so word will not get to the outside world."

Small Army Of Legal Aides Hastens To Form Defense For Accused Murderer

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 21.—While his small army of legal aides mapped strategy to obtain freedom for him on a writ of habeas corpus, Brig. Gen. Henry H. Denhardt, 69, passed his first day behind prison bars today.

Ironically, an escort of State troopers, to whom the general's brusque word was law when he was commander of the state militia, preceded the car in which he was brought to the Jefferson county jail here, from New Castle, 43 miles away.

Held For Grand Jury
County Judge A. S. Morgan ordered the transfer, after holding General Denhardt to the January grand jury without bond on a charge of murdering Verna Garr Taylor, 40, the lovely Lagrange widow to whom he was engaged.

Defense attorney, John Marshall Berry urged the transfer because of the hostile attitude manifested at yesterday's examining trial by a crowd of several thousand persons, a number of whom were kin to Mrs. Taylor and some of whom were known to be carrying shooting-irons beneath their leather hunting jackets.

Gen. Denhardt had been at liberty on bonds of $25,000 furnished by his friend, Dr. A. T. McCormick, state (Continued On Page Two)

Hill District In Pittsburgh Murder Scene

Joe Girarde, 34, Shot To Death On Street By Mild-Voiced "Killer"

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Pittsburgh's teeming Hill District, scene several years ago of the massacre of the three Volpe brothers, was rocked early today by the slaying of Joe Girarde, 34.

He was shot down by a mild-voiced slayer who called him "Jim," fired a bullet into his abdomen, pursued him across the street and when he fell, writhing in pain, pumped four more bullets into his head. Despite his wounds, Girarde lived 45 minutes but gave police no clues to the identity of his brown-clad executioner.

Police began an immediate check in Detroit whence Girarde came here three years ago on the theory that some incident in his past might have provoked the killing.
The killer ignored Joe's companion, his brother-in-law, Joseph F. Grande, who fled, yelling for police. At least eight persons witnessed the slaying but were of little aid to police in its solution. A green sedan was believed to have swept by and picked up the slayer.

Police began an immediate check in Detroit whence Girarde came here three years ago on the theory that some incident in his past might have provoked the killing.

Three Others Only Slightly Injured In Crash Near Charleroi, Pa.

WERE RETURNING FROM JUNIOR PROM

(International News Service)
CHARLEROI, Pa., Nov. 21.—Pretty Garmet Hoffman, of Belle Vernon, a student at California State Teachers College, was killed in an automobile crash early today while returning home from the junior prom.

She and her friend, J. Nestor, of Monessen, who was driving, were returning with Irene Gaskill and Jack Keefe, both of Monessen. At the bottom of a steep hill, on the Brownsville-Charleroi road, their automobile collided with one driven by Edwin Linden, of Brownsville, according to police.

Miss Hoffman, who had been doing student teaching at the Castner school in Donora, died before her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell V. Hoffman, arrived at the Charleroi, Monessen hospital. She was hurled against the windshield, suffering a broken neck.

Miss Gaskill and Nestor also are students at the college. They escaped with slight injuries.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Abandonment of the United States embassy in interior-ridden Madrid was expected momentarily today.

At the same time, it was anticipated the consulate at Barcelona, Spain's largest industrial city, which Insurgent General Francisco Franco has blockaded, and threatened to destroy, also will be closed.

State department officials were gravely concerned today over late dispatches from Madrid which told of the horrors of the siege, of wholesale exodus of women and children from the city, of an acute food shortage and the deaths of hundreds of civilians and destruction of countless buildings by incessant shell fire and aerial bombing.

DAILY LOSSES IN MILLIONS

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 21.—Pleas to President Roosevelt to directly take a hand in settling the Pacific coast shipping strike of 37,000 maritime workers were humming over telegraph wires today to the White House from harassed business men on the west coast.

Pointing out that innocent business leaders were suffering heavy financial losses daily and that the strike in San Francisco alone is costing $3,000,000 a day, the pleas for presidential intervention pointed out "conditions are beyond your conception."

Losses Terrific
The shipping merchants' association which estimated daily losses at $3,000,000 in San Francisco and $7,000,000 on the Pacific coast, urged 100 business houses in the bay region to file pleas with the white house.
"We respectfully beg you, Mr. President, to terminate the maritime strike," read a plea made by the San Francisco apartment house owners and managers association and the purchasing agents' association of northern California.
"The financial losses to business are colossal. Tenants are losing their jobs and can not pay their rent. Conditions are beyond your conception."

Farm Men Feted By Kiwanis Club

Night's Gala Dinner-Program Is Enjoyed At Westfield Grange Hall

HUMORIST'S TALK EVENING HIGHLIGHT

A delicious chicken and fried oyster dinner, with all the trimmings; a humorist's address and an abundance of good old Kiwanis fellowship, a la New Castle club style, featured last night's special program of the Kiwanians at Westfield Grange hall, where they played host to a group of Lawrence county farmers.

It was Kiwanis' first dinner with the agricultural group in months, but it was a success in every particular.

John McDowell, editor of the weekly Wilkesburg Gazette, and a humorist of note, brought the chief address of the evening. He discussed purely in a humorous manner, the topic of "Scientific Farming."

The dinner came first on the program, and the ladies and men of Westfield, North Beaver township's far-famed Grange, turned out a feast that would bring joy to the face of any king.

After the dinner the group moved upstairs for the evening's program.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Striving desperately to stem the momentum of Europe's drift towards war, Britain today took two important steps, coincident with an internationally-broadcast warning by Gen. Francisco Franco to France and Russia that the rebels would destroy all ships transporting armaments to Loyalist Spain.

Britain instructed her diplomatic representatives in Berlin and Rome to press for quick action on London's note to the Locarno powers. The note urged an early discussion which Britain hopes will lead to a new general European peace agreement supplanting the now defunct Locarno security pact.

Hold-Up Pair That Operated Here Given Second 10-25 Year Terms

(International News Service)

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 21.—Twice sentenced to 10-to-25 year prison terms, George Popa, 23, and John Nosc, 21, partners in a hold-up career that reached into a dozen cities, were to be transferred to Ohio penitentiary today.

Arraigned before Judge Robert Gosline, the two readily admitted they staged the $1,051 robbery of a branch of the Toledo Edison Co. in nearby Sylvania, a week ago.

Judge Gosline pronounced sentences identical to those imposed on the two at Canton Thursday, in connection with a hold-up. The state parole board will determine whether the sentences will be served concurrently.

Captured in Akron Monday night, the two were linked in a dozen hold-ups at Youngstown, Dover, and several Pennsylvania cities, including New Castle, besides those in Canton and Sylvania.

NUISANCE TAXES TO STAY

Continuation To Be Recommended

Congress Will Probably Take Early Action To Extend Many Taxes

LEVIES TO REMAIN TO BALANCE BUDGET

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service
Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Roosevelt administration today was prepared to recommend continuation of approximately $500,000,000 in miscellaneous "nuisance" taxes which, without congressional action, would automatically expire or be reduced next June 30.

High treasury officials concurred in the prediction of Senator Harrison (D) of Mississippi, chairman of the senate finance committee, that the levies must remain until the budget is balanced.

A ray of hope was offered to some taxpayers, however, with officials' report of some levies where the cost of collection is abnormally high.

To Continue Levies
The levies which are expected to be continued include those on automobile equipment, telephone and telegraph messages, and movies. Repeal is envisioned for levies on sporting goods, cosmetics, cameras and brewer's wort.

Levies which expire next June 30, under present law, together with the yield in the fiscal year ending last June 30 include:

Lubricating oils, $27,102,831; brewers' wort, $1,010,113; matches, $7,106,350; gasoline, 1 c gal., $177,119,040; electrical energy, 3 pct., $33,575,179; tires and tubes, $32,575,179; cosmetics, $13,207,983; auto trucks, $7,000,281; autos, motorcycles, $48,200,855; auto accessories, $110,188; radios, $5,075,270.

Others are: mechanical refrigerators, $7,939,533; sporting goods, $5,531,122; firearms, $2,494,574; cameras, $577,925; chewing gum, $807,179; telephone, telegraph messages, $21,068,347; transportation oil by pipelines, $9,793,995; oil imports, $8,000,000; stock transfers, $1,100,000; lumber imports, $1,000,000; copper imports, $800,000.

Taxes subject to reduction: Admissions, $17,112,175; issues of bonds, stocks, $9,300,000; stock transfers, $1,800,000; produce futures, $1,300,000.

Linked with these levies is 3 cent intercity postage, which yields about $75,000,000 a year and which also is expected to be continued.

danger to the lives of American representatives in the Spanish capital outweighed any purpose that could be achieved by their remaining there longer.

Destruction of the Polish embassy by a direct hit from a bomb increased the alarm here for the safety of the American representatives.

London, Nov. 21.—Spanish rebel leaders have promised to spare the American and British embassies in Madrid, it was announced here today.

The security zone in the capital is being extended to cover approximately one square mile in the vicinity of foreign missions.

Americans in Barcelona, blockaded Loyalist port, were sternly warned today to quit the city immediately.

The United States, through its consulate in Barcelona, disclaimed responsibility for further protection to Americans who fail to heed the warning of the State department to leave the danger spot.

The consulate there may be closed at any moment and without further notice, Consul-general Mahlon Fay Perkins declared in a broadcast addressed to all Americans in Barcelona.

PRESIDENT IN BRIEF STOP AT PORT OF SPAIN

An informal press conference in the admiral's cabin. He disclosed he paid his last visit to Port of Spain while a college student on a cruise with his mother.

He asked a local newspaper editor about the Queens Park hotel, where he visited on that occasion. The president said he had signed a lot of mail since leaving Charleston, S. C., read one detective story and otherwise loafed and rested. He said he had not yet begun work on the speeches he will deliver at Rio de Janeiro and Buenos Aires.

The president's party, which includes Col. Edward Watson, white house military aide and his secretary, Marvin McIntyre, had done a good deal of fishing, he said, angling for "everything from whales down."

Mr. Roosevelt appeared in the pink of condition. Exposure to the sun has given him a healthy tan. He expressed considerable interest in the equator-crossing ceremony scheduled for Monday, identifying himself as "chief offender against King Neptune."

The president's son, James, will return the Trinidad deputation's call later in the day.

in a hole at the base of an old tree. He notified J. R. McLure, of 102 Hillcrest avenue, deputy game warden, who brought the dog and puppies to his home, where they may be secured by their owner. It is believed that the mother dog became lost while hunting, and made a nest in the old tree, where the puppies were born.

Pa. News observes that another old house, one of the older ones in the city, is being razed on North street, just east of the North street school building. It had not been occupied for some time and had fallen into a state of disrepair.

This spring-like weather is most agreeable following the cold snap during the fore part of the week. However, similar weather was experienced here about the same time last year, the temperature getting down to 19 degrees on November 19, with a trace of snow.

A number of old houses are being razed, and one in particular that has been more or less of a landmark, is the old Whaley homestead, situated at the corner of County Line and Cascade streets. It is now being torn down.

and auburn-haired Frances Patten radio artist, related contrasting stories of their parts in the real life drama.

Miss Lee, a guest at the estate of Gouverneur Morris, internationally noted author, when Russell's body was found, shot to death, right hand clutching a .32 calibre automatic pistol in a garden swing, told of a growing fear for her own life, based on no tangible thing other than the weird aspects of the case.

Tells Of Party
Miss Patten, member of the last gay party attended by Russell the Saturday and Sunday before he died, September 25, told of champagne flowing like water as Russell lavishly entertained two couples.

The grand jury subpoena was issued, it was announced, for the purpose of checking reported heavy withdrawals of funds, which investigators said might help them in unearthing valuable evidence. Identity of the person was not disclosed.

Meanwhile the financial affairs of Russell also were being checked to account for his lavish spending while admittedly a "$100 a month auto salesman" according to police.

Made Connection
It was thought Russell might have obtained the funds from the gun-running syndicate with which he told friends on his last party he had made a "good" connection.

Authorities reasoned that Russell might have been slain by the syndicate because he had "talked too much."

While the excitement of the many-angled investigation was in progress, two chemists were completing tests on a hole in the side of the canvas with which the body was found and on the pillow on which Russell's head lay when the body was found.

They hope to determine whether the edge of the hole contains blood deposited by the bullet after it blasted out Russell's life and also whether there was blood on the pillow.

rebel and Loyalist, thereby eliminating the necessity for a blockade by the Loyalists, who were the attendant danger of international naval incidents.

Meanwhile Britain is expected to recognize the rebels as belligerents. This means that Gen. Franco would be permitted to stop and search British vessels within the Spanish three-mile zone provided a blockade were declared and proved actually effective and not a mere "paper blockade."

Charged With Dynamite
Internationally, however, the situation remains charged with dynamite.

The fascists-communist feud today became centered in France, with Gen. Franco taking legal steps against the Bank of France towards recovery of nearly $300,000,000 in gold shipped out of Spain by the Loyalist Loyalists.

In this step he has the reported backing of Germany and Italy. Since much of the money has already gone to Russia for "safe keeping," the dangerous position now is that fascist Spain, Italy and Germany are demanding redress from Loyalist France and communist Russia.

today's full, cutting military operations to a minimum. Both sides used the calm to better prepare for the next stage.

There was considerable artillery, machine-gun, and rifle fire in the University city sector, mainly from Loyalist guns. For a while snow fell in blinding sheets, and the defenders moved up to regain some of the old positions in the university area in the northwestern part of the capital.

The rebels lost the Casa De Valasquez which was gutted by fire, and lost part of the hospital clinic. Each side held a part of the hospital, a Loyalist commander said.

The writer visited the firing line and talked with the leftist militiamen today. Their morale apparently was good, the men jesting freely under the strain of the long battle.

Evacuate Non-Combatants
Francisco Caminero, in charge of the evacuation of non-combatants from Madrid, declared in an interview.

"Evacuation of women and children is necessary for humanitarian reasons. There will be no evacuation en masse. From one to two thousand are being evacuated daily from wrecked homes to new homes still in the capital. The defense Junta will not allow any evacuations not controlled by me."

He indicated there would be no concentrated flight from the capital, and was in keeping with the Loyalists' spirit to defend the city to the death.

The minister from San Domingo sent a note to the Junta this morning saying this country had decided to use their legation in Madrid as an asylum for war orphans.

Some of the orphans will be sent to Santo Domingo, where the president of the country will personally prepare to continue their education, the note said.

Empty Victory
Loyalists, according to a government communique won back the hospital buildings of University city in a series of skirmishes "in which heavy losses were inflicted on the enemy."

The victory was mainly empty, however, for the University hospitals are among the scores of structures nearly wholly destroyed by rebel shellfire and incendiary bombs.

Adding to the misery of the populace, now depleted by the flight of many thousands of refugees, snowfall brought military operations in the Guadarrama mountains and along the highway to El Escorial to a standstill.

Throng of the curious nevertheless braved the storm to watch firemen battle huge blazes raging near the Puerto Del Sol in the heart of Madrid.

Altogether 50 rebel airplanes participated in successive air raids over Madrid Friday, bombing leftist military barracks and government buildings.

Rebels in University city put strips of calico on the roofs so their fires could identify them.

Both the rebels and Loyalists are closely watching the foreign situation, which may yet prove the deciding factor in the conflict.

In another bid for fascist assistance, Gen. Queipo De Liano, broadcasting from Seville, charged that Loyalists in Madrid, Barcelona, and Valencia assaulted German and Italian citizens looted their homes, and destroyed their possessions.

Jane Burke, better known as Camille Jane, American army scout and mail carrier, was born in Princeton, Mo., in 1852, and died in Deadwood, S. D., in 1903.

SILVERMAN'S ECONOMY SHOE SHOP

Complimentary Consultation On Shoe and Foot Problems

Mr. Jos. Phillips, our special representative of the Musebeck Shoe Co, makers of "Health Spot" Shoes for Men, Women and Children, will hold free clinic for Two Days Only

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

He is a specialist on feet, in relation to shoes. He will advise you about your shoes, free of charge, without any obligation on your part to buy.

362,000 POUNDS IN YOUR SHOES

You actually pound 181 tons of weight into your shoes every mile you walk (figure based on 150 pound person).

Do you realize why feet let down, hurt, develop corns, bunions, calluses and more serious ills? In ordinary shoes that constant pounding twists your feet and entire body out of balance and posture.

BALANCE YOUR FEET AND YOU BALANCE YOUR BODY

If your body were in perfect alignment, its center line of body weight would be exactly as in figure at left. But nine chances out of ten, you walk with your feet imbalanced because of your shoes. This causes your feet to "roll inward" and your arches to let down, grinding the bones together, pinching and cramping nerves and blood vessels. Do you wonder your feet hurt, that corns and calluses develop, feet and legs cramp, and even many ailments, due to bad posture and wastes carried from the blood-starved feet, manifest themselves in various parts of the body? Bad feet cause many ills.

WALK IN HEALTH WITH HAPPY FEET

You do not need to suffer from your feet. You do not need ever to fear bad feet and their train of ills. The newest development of science, the HEALTH SPOT SHOE, will give your feet perfect balance and posture. You will have graceful feet. Drop into our store and learn the secret of these shoes. There will be no obligation, of course.

Child Of England? Hard-

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

DR. HUGH H. YOUNG and Dr. William P. Didusch of the Brady Clinic at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore, took some glands from the body of a young murderer, after his execution, and used them to restore a sick man to health and vigor.

This interests everybody. There is less interest, and there should be more in the fact that the brains of men dead a hundred, a thousand years or more, preserved in their books, give mental health and vigor to millions.

ENGLAND PROTESTS the action of Italy and Germany recognizing the not yet established Spanish government of General Franco, leader of the insurgents, and probable dictator, if he wins.

PARIS THINKS the agreement between Berlin and Tokio, placing Russia between enemies east and west, is a peril to peace. As it happens, Germany also has probable enemies, Russia and France on the west, and France and Russia have a pact, which would probably drag in France, if Russia had Japan and Germany to fight.

France and Russia against Germany and Japan would make an interesting war, for any fortunate enough to keep out of it.

TOO MANY WORDS
Too much talk.
Altogether too much talk.
Too much faith in the slick and devious way of the tongue. In words that tumble over each other, that half tell the truth and half tell convenient lies—and come, all too willingly, to our rescue when we've gotten ourselves into trouble.

We've made a mistake. We've done the wrong thing. Do we admit our guilt? No, we do not. We plead not guilty and cry, "Let me explain. Give me a chance to show you how it happened, and soon you will see how guiltless I am, as innocent as a new-born lamb, as a pink-eyed rabbit!"

That's what we do. We nibble at the truth. We trim and shape it, and work over it, until its own Mother Fact wouldn't recognize it. We will not say, "Yes, I did it! Yes, I was a fool, but I don't know why or how it happened!" . . . We want to be heroes, and blame human beings. We want to wriggle out, and use words to prove that black is white, or at least, a pleasant gray. How do I know you do that, too?

Well, you're a human being. And I've been told that I do it, too. That I have too much faith in words. . . . I deny it hotly! I swear that I don't use words to grease myself out of difficulties. That when I'm wrong I admit it, and take my punishment.

But deep inside of me I admit it's true. Too often, I've leaned heavily on words and used them badly. Made them turn over and play dead, and perform silly, useless tricks. Too often sent them in to make many excuses when I should have pleaded guilty and taken my punishment.

But I'm not the only one who pines for the dictionary. The alibi club I belong to has a hundred million members. Its symbol is the wagging tongue.

The World

AND THE Mud Puddles

FREE THOUGHT IN DANGER

Do you know that London, England, derives its name from Lunden, meaning Grove City? Well, it does. The name was compounded of Belgic Britton, which according to Caesar must have been the language of London in his time. What-ever was the language in Caesar's time, the words and thoughts which came from London town have spelled civilization.

This word Civilization is associated today with sanitary plumbing, electric lights, houses heated with artificial means, paved roads, automobiles, airplanes and radio, but civilization is much more than that. It is the Freedom of Thought. The greatest thinkers of the world lived in what we would call a pig pen.

London in the day of Shakespeare, Bacon and Marlow was a filthy city. The streets were almost impassable from mud, filth and offal. The houses like card houses were of wood almost meeting over the streets at the top. The interiors were no better regarded. "The floors" says Erasmus, "are commonly of clay, strewn with rushes, which are occasionally renewed; but underneath lies unmoistered, an ancient collection of beer, grease, fragments of fish and everything nasty."

The illumination of the streets was with lanterns, hung by strips of rope or hay and the city was subjected to repeated fires and plagues.

The cities of Europe were no better, yet the Sixteenth Century was an age so rich in genius of every kind, that no age has since ever approached the ability of its poets, essayists, painters, dramatists, philosophers.

Hints and Dints

Sun sets tonight 4:41. Sun rises tomorrow 6:52.

Honpecked Baltimore husbands have organized a society known as "Doghouse, Inc." to which they may repair when they are on the outs with their wives, and the idea is said to be spreading. The membership card states that the "undersigned has led a dog's life, has been howled at by his best friends, and now has the privilege of taking shelter at the Doghouse, Inc., where he can relax and forget his worries at all times."

In other words, just a nice club where he can go to be rid of his wife, I suppose.

"Will you please raise your chin a bit?" he asked.

Woman And The Job Problem.
New Question Of Sexes Arises.
Women Forging To The Front.

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

A RECENT PLAY and a recent picture brought to mind how far women had advanced toward equal rights in the last 30 years. Both play and picture seemed stuffy because they portrayed unrealities, or what seem to us of the present era to be unrealities.

Yet the present era of women may seem unreal to our children and grandchildren—for most certainly women will proceed onward, at even a greater pace.

A census of women "out in the world"—in business—a few years hence, when a general census will be taken, undoubtedly will disclose "startling" figures.

SOCIAL READJUSTMENT
As women must continue to bear children, their potency in the home is not likely to be disturbed. In order to perpetuate life, the home is made sacrosanct for women. In brief, they rule the roost. It ought to be so, it probably always will be so.

But what of men?

Here is a man writing and wondering—wondering whether woman will not in the end completely dominate man.

She is the harder of the two (as birth is made safer for mothers) and seems to have a more stubborn stamina.

Be that as it may, there is no effort here at stirring up an argument. The question arises over jobs.

WOMEN FIRST?
A census of the unemployed will be taken soon. (That differs from the general census to be taken several years hence, which will give the various occupations of the sexes.)

If the census of the unemployed disclose that a larger percentage of women is idle than men, how shall the government determine which should have the preference for a job?

For example, if on the same street, a woman bread earner and a man bread winner both are idle, and there is only one job in prospect, who shall be favored?

Of course, both ought to have jobs, but under our present social and economic setup, there will have to be a choice. Despite a census of the unemployed, millions will remain unemployed.

Probably there is no ready answer; but whoever is chosen on that street, whether it be the man or the woman, a feeling of injustice will prevail.

GIRL VS. BOY
Even where the idle persons are not the sole breadwinners—such as young girls and young men—there will be difficulty.

A young girl of today believes in her equal right with a young man to obtain a job. She even may wed him in the end, but first she desires her fling at the "outside" world. She cannot be sure that she desires the young man until she has experienced the contacts of that world outside the narrow confines of her home and her family circle.

In the meantime, the young man may feel despondent and be deterred in beginning the fight that all men must make to maintain the upper hand over life. He may drift to uselessness and destruction. When, and if, the opportunity for work does come, he may be too timid, too much a beaten youth, to respond. And he may become a derelict, a liability to society, rather than an energizing force.

The tragedy of our economic collapse fell not heaviest upon the old and the middle-aged but upon the youth of the land.

Furthermore, it sharpened a struggle, smoldering for ages, between the sexes. That struggle remains a part of our economic and social problem. It will play a vital part in the coming readjustment.

Women may emerge completely dominant—but, in her victory, she ought to preserve the strength and independence of man, for her happiness is dependent on a virile, not a decadent, manhood.

NEIGHBORS AND NATIONS

Life would not pleasant be
If where our gardens meet
My neighbor challenged me
To halt my straying
And I had cannons grim
To guard my entry gate.
Still carrying on with him
Some ancient, tribal hate.

Suppose all three or four
Our children wed advise:
Hate them who live next door.
And all their kin despise;
Distrust them night and day.
Their every act condemn;
Give not one flower away.
And share no joy with them.

Suppose half hid with vines.
At every crossing path.
We both maintained the signs
Of ancient, savage wrath.
What good could either gain?
What pleasure fill the day?
Yet nations strive in vain
For peace in just that way.

Today's Yesterdays—Nov. 21, 1579—Sir Thomas Gresham died, destined to be remembered through centuries for "Gresham's Law." It is not a law on any statute book. It is an economic law to which he called attention, that usually operates in opposition to man made statutes.

But Gresham didn't originate the economic principle which bears his name. It was expressed earlier by Nicholas Oresme, scientist whom the French King Charles V called in for advice when his subjects lost faith in the value of the country's currency. Oresme called attention to repeated devaluation of the franc by issuance of more currency and pointed out that if poor money and better money were in circulation at the same time, the inevitable result would be that the people would hang on to the better money and spend the poorer. The bad money would drive out the good. Thus the total amount of money in use would be reduced, instead of increased, and trade will be constricted.

What Noted People Say

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES—Fritz Kreisler, outstanding violinist, urges young persons not to undertake professional musical careers: "Demands made on the concert artist today are too enervating. Art needs leisure and there is no leisure today."

CHICAGO—Dr. E. Stanley Jones, English missionary and author, advises people not to run to the divorce courts at the first touch of difficulty: "Why not emulate the oyster, which, when annoyed by a grain of sand, throws a wall of pearl around it? Many saintly husbands are made so by cantankerous wives—and vice versa."

NEW YORK—Edward A. Alexander, New York attorney, criticizes "invisible government": "In the United States, politics has become the greater racket in the country—the racket of rackets. The masses of the people have no vote in nominating candidates for public office."

HOLLYWOOD—Catherine Doucet film actress, tells of a coincidence: "Imagine my surprise to find in a second-hand shop here two antique chairs that once had graced my grandmother Provost's home in Virginia."

CHICAGO—Ruth Mills, operatic star, born in Bialystok, Russia, receives her second citizenship papers and comments: "I lived in my native village under the regime of the imperial Russia, German, Polish and Bolshevik governments. Now that I have my own choice, I want to be an American."

In the old days, however, there were wits who could get a laugh without the help of dirt.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

ophers and humanitarians. It was the age when Italy did show in poetry the two splendid figures of Ariosto and Tasso; in political analysis, Machiavelli, and it was also the century of Raphael, Leonardo, da Vinci and Michael Angelo, to say nothing of Clement Marat, the hunted Huguenot poet, who lifted French poetry from its artificiality and Pierre Rousard, the petted court poet, who enriched and dignified it; in prose, Rabelais, boisterous, grotesque and obscene, yet hating ignorance and fanaticism; Montaigne, quiet, gossipy, egotistic, but despising all extremes and the Heptameron curiously clean in spirit for its broadness of matter.

It was the age of the Reformation, of Luther and Calvin, with the great Dutch Erasmus, the supreme man of letters of the century.

Out of the material filth rose these great men. They did not need electric light, or any other modern conveniences to enable them to think, to write, to paint and to act. It does seem strange that in our modern age of science, that the nations of the earth should turn their backs upon the Truth which came out of the Hog wallows of the Sixteenth Century.

Today

cliff died, and referring to Italy and Japan, speaks of "mutual admiration among thieves."

Japan is too polite and Italy too tactful to ask England:

"How did you get all your colonies? Did you pay the Boers for their gold and diamond mines in South Africa, or the Zulus for their African possessions; did you pay Germany for her colonies taken after the war?"

STALIN OF RUSSIA preserves an unusual faculty, that of keeping his mouth shut. He sent his first ambassador to Japan with these instructions:

"Keep your mouth shut, your ears open, remembering that the Japanese know at least as much as you do."

Stalin said nothing while Hitler, and Germany devoted a week to abusing his kind of government; he has said nothing this far about the anti-Russian combination between Japan and Germany.

Probably busy speeding up his airplane and submarine factories, he has started something new, "the first school of women machine gunners." Now operating in Moscow, the school has 54 girls learning to run machine guns.

IN WASHINGTON, where they are responsible for the safety of this country, the navy, asking for five hundred millions, plans to spend a maximum of 45 millions on the air-fleet.

Has anybody in Washington kept track of events in Spain? The Madrid government owns the Spanish navy, with its fighting ships. How important have those ships been in this Spanish war, compared with a few airplanes flying over Madrid?

MORE PAY increases, more bonuses, more distribution of accumulated surplus by big corporations. 65,000 workers in textile and shoe industries learn that they are to have Christmas bonuses and better wages.

Today the General Electric company and Mr. Gerard Swope will probably be heard from, telling what the directors have decided to do.

As the French gentleman said, passing the fifth floor, having fallen from the tenth.

"It is all right, if it lasts."

SOME BIG corporations pouring out surpluses because the law compels it may learn to sympathize with the female scorpion, who takes her young ones out for a ride on her back, in the nice sunshine. As she crawls along, the little scorpions devour the inside of her body, finally leaving an empty shell.

Too drastic distribution of surplus might produce several empty corporation shells. The baby-scorpion stockholders should think of that.

WINSTON CHURCHILL, able Englishman, thinks Great Britain, France, the United States, should remain "one in support of democracy," and calls the United States "a child of our blood and ideals."

This country is the child of many different kinds of blood and ideas; greater New York includes the biggest Italian city in the world, bigger than Rome or Milan; more than a million of Italian birth or descent.

The same New York contains two million Jews, many more than ever were in Palestine; old Jerusalem could have been put in a corner of Central Park.

Winston Churchill, himself, is more a child of the United States than the United States is a child of England. Churchill's mother was the former American girl, Miss Jerome, whose father built her a fine house with a theater and stage, which is now the Democratic club, on New York's Madison Square.

A LABOR MEMBER of Parliament says King Edward is visiting unfortunate coal miners in Wales, to win popular approval in connection with his proposed marriage to an American lady.

The Laborite apparently forgets that before there was any public discussion of "an American lady" King Edward, after visiting the great passenger steamer Queen Mary, visited some miserable slums where workmen live, and asked how Great Britain, rich enough and powerful enough to build such a ship, could tolerate such hideous slums.

The king seems to have a really democratic "streak" apart from his interest in any "American ladies". (Copyright, 1936, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. International copyright and all other rights reserved.)

LOCAL NURSE HAS MANY DUTIES AS AIRWAYS HOSTESS

When a local newspaperwoman, Miss Janet Kissinger, took a plane for Pittsburgh out of New York City the other day she found the air hostess aboard to be none other than Miss Rose Verga who left the Jameson Memorial hospital nursing staff just a few weeks ago.

The attractive young hostess was kept busy every minute of the two-hour trip. After seeing that each passenger was comfortably seated she passed out copies of a New York paper and then retired to the little kitchenette at the rear to prepare the noon-day luncheon.

Quietly and efficiently, while the huge Douglas skyliner roared along 5000 feet above Pennsylvania's mountains, Miss Verga served to the 14 passengers a delicious, hot repast complete from bouillon to ice cream.

At the brief stop at Pittsburgh's municipal airport Miss Verga was again on her way, this time headed for Chicago.

Dillinger Denies Accenting Of Job In Crime Museum

(International News Service)
MOORESVILLE, Ind., Nov. 21.—John Dillinger, Sr., father of the slain arch desperado, today denied that he had been offered a post as head of a crime museum in New York.

In fact, the aged farmer did not seem interested in such a job. When a representative of International News Service called at his farm near here today, he found Dillinger doing chores in the barn and apparently well satisfied with his routine rural life.

The father of the man who once was Public Enemy No. 1 has had his share of the limelight since G-men killed his son in Chicago. He and other members of the Dillinger family have appeared in vaudeville, with carnival companies and the famer was the chief attraction for a time at the Little Bohemia resort in Wisconsin, where a Dillinger museum was operated.

SCOTTION UNION
Mrs. Jennie Wilson of the New Bedford road, received the members of the Scotland W. C. T. U. in her home Wednesday afternoon, November 18.

The meeting was opened with a devotional period conducted by Mrs. Wilson, and as a part of this period each person present was called upon to give a reason she is thankful this year.

Miss Elizabeth Taylor, the secretary, gave her report. In the absence of the treasurer payment of dues was made to the president, Mrs. Coates. The report of the flower mission director was given.

The present project of the union is the making of a name quilt. Members were reminded that quilt patches and the money collected for them must be in before March, 1937.

Plans were made for a Christmas party. Committees were appointed to take care of details. This will be an evening party and will take the place of the monthly meeting. Husbands and friends of the members will be guests.

A study of the book, "What Alcohol Is; What It Does," was to have been started at this meeting but because of the time elapsing between this time and the regular meeting time in January it was thought best to defer the beginning of this study until the January meeting. Miss Taylor, who is to lead the union in the study, spoke briefly on the subject.

Mrs. Taylor and daughter, Joan, were welcomed to the meeting as guests. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

President Gets Chance For Deep Sea Fishing

By GEORGE DURNO
International News Service
Staff Correspondent

ABOARD U. S. S. CHESTER, OFF TRINIDAD, Nov. 21.—President Roosevelt got out his tackle for a few hours' tropical fishing today as the cruiser Indianapolis, dashing southward at 25 knots, bore down on Port of Spain to refuel.

British officials of Trinidad will board the Indianapolis as soon as it casts anchor at 7 a. m., to pay their respects, but while the president's son, James, and Capt. Paul Bastedo, White House naval aide, go ashore to return the call, Mr. Roosevelt will be out in a small boat angling with Col. Edwin Watson.

The navy tanker Sallinas is waiting in Port of Spain to transfer fuel to the Indianapolis.

The Indianapolis will leave early in the afternoon for Rio De Janeiro, next stop on the fast trip to the Pan-American Peace conference at Buenos Aires.

With crossing of the equator due Monday, warnings to the uninitiated "pollywogs," including President Roosevelt, are getting increasingly terrifying.

Special costumes were brought along from New York for the Neptune show in the Indianapolis, while the secret service men, newspaper correspondents, and others "get their" aboard the Chester in another elaborate ceremony.

The 1600-mile run from Charleston, S. C., was made on train-like schedule. After passing between the Virgin Islands, the two ships in the presidential convoy started an air show, each catapulting and then retrieving two airplanes.

Mr. Roosevelt plans to land at Trinidad on the return voyage.

First Suspect In Bus Terminal Robbery Is Freed Of Suspicion

Alderman O. H. P. Green discharged Paul Zhunko of Youngstown, Friday at a preliminary hearing into charges of armed robbery at the Bus station. The hold-up occurred two weeks ago to-night.

Carmen Amabile and Alec Deprano, witnesses to the robbery here, formerly had identified Zhunko as one of the bandits. However, since seeing the man arrested at Akron, who admitted to local police that they committed the robbery, they failed yesterday to name Zhunko as one of the men.

One of the bandits sentenced for crimes at Canton and who was a participant here strongly resembled Zhunko, according to reports.

GOES HUNTING ON TRACTOR, IS WOUNDED

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 21.—William S. Murdock, 35, of Fenection, R. D. 1, conceived the idea of operating his tractor over one of the fields on his farm and carrying a gun on the tractor in case any small game should be routed.

He would work in the fields and perhaps pepper a rabbit or two at the same time. He placed the gun on the floor of the tractor in front of him and within easy reach. As he was operating the tractor a jolt dislodged the gun. It bounced to the ground and was discharged.

The full force of the shot struck him in the leg and knee. A deflection of an inch more would have resulted in his death. Murdock is in the Butler County Memorial hospital, although his condition is not serious.

AROUND CITY HALL

Due to council's action in establishing a bid for corner property assessments it is possible that the clerks in the assessor's department will have some extra work to do. Many of the assessments have been written on the books. In fact most of the appeals have been made and acted upon.

There is no question but that police here were elated over the capture by Akron police of a pair of bandits who played Dillinger throughout western Pennsylvania and western Ohio. Not only did the capture clear up local robberies but Canton by taking over the prisoners save the taxpayers costs of court trials here, and prison expenses.

Dent Shields, who served as a temporary policeman for several months, is also a radio technician and understands the police radio system installed by Wayne Sines. Shields no longer is employed temporarily by the city police owing to the return from training school of several police. Probabilities are that should holiday business require more men Shields and the others who served, may be returned to work temporarily.

JARRETT WINS OUT BY OFFICIAL COUNT

WARREN, Pa., Nov. 21.—The official count in the 20th congressional race gave Benjamin Jarrett, Parrel Republican, a 1,797 vote margin over Representative D. P. Driscoll, St. Marys Democrat, who sought re-election.

The final vote was Jarrett 58,738, Driscoll 56,941.

Democratic State Chairman David Lawrence has announced the party will contest the result on charges of coercion and excessive expenditures. Jarrett led in Venango, Forest and Warren counties and Driscoll was ahead in Mercer, Clarion and Elk counties.

Hightower To Test Ray Gray Monday

Eight Battles Are Scheduled For Arena Garden, Neshannock Avenue; Rubin Meets Olarcheck; McClure Matched To Box Herron; Augustine, Kuhla, Moran, Retardo And Cortez In Bouts; First Battle Starts At 8:15 P. M.

Two more days—Monday night, to be exact and the Art of Hit and Miss, as exemplified by some of the most rugged amateur fighters in this section will be under way at the Arena garden, Neshannock Avenue. There are eight battles scheduled, each to get three rounds. Whether they will be terminated by knock-outs remains to be seen. However, indications point not only to knock-outs, but also a big crowd, due to reasons (a) the five local amateur satellites, one Wash & Jefferson bulb and 10 other fistic gladiators, who like to scrap, scheduled for action. The first battle will start at 8:15 p. m.

The local knights of the fistic colony destined for a win or a defeat are Ray Gray, Mickie Rubin, Dotey Augustine, Frankie Moran and Charlie Kuhla. All of them have been in training for 10 or more days and each is pronounced by his trainer to be in the pink of condition. And they need be. According to reports not one of the ring warriors have a soft opponent. Jim Hightower opponent of Ray, is said to do to dotey, Tony Olarcheck, who will battle Mickie Rubin, the four of whom is a seasoned veteran. Jack Herron has romped a dozen times on the resined canvas and hopes to beat the aspirations of Bob McClure, the W & J 145 pounder.

There hasn't been an amateur scrap here for approximately a month and with Thanksgiving a few days distant, and trailed by Merry Christmas, it is not likely there will be more boxing shows until the first of the New Year. Due to this, plus several other reasons aforesaid, no doubt the fans who like to see punches given and received will esconce themselves in an advantageous seat and enjoy the sight of pugilism as displayed by the amateurs. Everybody knows that "Fight" is the middle name of every amateur scrapper and no doubt Monday night the boys who toe the scratch and put up their "dukes" will be in the ring to keep this fact firm.

Here's the Calendar
Ray Gray vs. Jim Hightower, 160 pound class.
Mickie Rubin vs. Tony Olarcheck, 175 pound class.

Bob McClure vs. Jack Herron, 145 pound class.
Joe Yotz vs. Kid Roberts, 135 pound class.

Nick Retardo vs. Elmer Cortez, 120 pound class.
Frankie Moran vs. Herman Armitage, 126 pound class.

Dotey Augustine vs. Chuck Clowes, 135 pound class.
Charlie Kuhla vs. Pete Roberts, 135 pound class.

Retardo and Cortez are the Ellwood City opponents who staged a

Seek To Throttle Subsidization Of College Athletes

(International News Service) NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—College athletic systems—and professionalism in football in particular—today faced a new inquiry by the Carnegie Foundation for the advancement of teaching.

Frank A. Vanderlip, treasurer of the executive committee of the foundation, disclosed that a number of college presidents had given information regarding football professionalism and subsidization, admitting that the situation was too difficult for them to deal with, and appealing to the Carnegie Foundation to make a sweeping investigation.

"We have found that college athletics are tainted with professionalism," Vanderlip declared, "and that the situation is now more reprehensible than ever before."

Vanderlip told of one college president relating that more than $500,000 had been bet on a single football game, and added: "One day one of these games will be thrown."

The Carnegie Foundation has received a request from the National Association of State Universities for a new study of intercollegiate athletics, and it was believed that the foundation would go into the whole problem in one general inquiry.

Seven years ago, after a similar investigation, the foundation charged that about one in seven athletes in 130 colleges was subsidized, and officials declared that the situation improved as a result of its disclosures, only to become worse again during the past two years.

Local Teams Set For Grid Tussles

Colaluca Battle Frisco, At Centennial Field; Bears Oppose Youngstown

Independent football will dominate the spotlight in New Castle on Sunday afternoon.

At Centennial field, the Colaluca of South Side are primed for their battle with the Friscos. The Slabtowners will be out to score their second win of the season over the Friscos. The Colaluca, one of the strongest independent aggregations in the district, is also preparing for its battle with the Wabash Bears for the New Castle independent title.

The Wabash Bears, undefeated to date, are set for their crucial game Sunday on the E. & A. field where the seventh ward representatives line up against a tough customer, the Scher T. team of Youngstown. The grid fracas is slated to start at 3 o'clock. Gaby DeCaprio, whose high school grid career ended at Martins Ferry, will be in the Wabash Bears' backfield.

John Uram Scores For Salem Eleven

Two New Castle gridders were mainly responsible for Salem's only score against St. Vincent, Friday, at Latrobe. The Saints won a 21-6 victory.

In the second stanza, John Uram, fleet footed local lad, intercepted a pass from the St. Vincent 30, ran 10 yards and lateralized to Charles James also of this city, who ran it to the 11. After Fullmer picked up five through center, James made a first down. On the next play, Uram crashed through for the score. James and Uram has been big scoring threats for the Salemites.

Franklin-Alumni To Play Tuesday

Eddie Strausbaugh is the coach of the Alumni team. He will have a fast aggregation on the court. The Faculty team failed to show up yesterday for a scheduled game with the Alumni.

Dukes Hope To Top Marquette

Duquesne Hopes To Halt Winning Streak Of Famous Milwaukee Team

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—Not even by proxy can Pittsburgh be represented in the Rose Bowl this year with all its teams several times beaten or tied, but that didn't prevent the smoky town from contracting a bad case of Rose Bowl fever today.

The answer lay in the appearance here of Marquette's undefeated and united golden avalanche against "little" Duquesne, the giant killer, in the last game of the year for both squads.

Forbes field appeared certain of its first capacity crowd of the current football campaign—about 35,000—as the Dukes take the field hopeful of once again pinning back the ears of a Rose Bowl headed aggression. They did it some weeks ago when they upset Pitt's proud Panthers, and aim to ask no quarter this afternoon.

Marquette rules the favorite, but by a smaller margin than might be expected, odds ran about 6 to 5.

Principal spectator interest was centered in the department of Buzz Buivid, the avalanche's flashy ball tosser, runner, all-American candidate and No. 1 threat, and in the famed Guepe brothers, said to spell menace with a capital M.

Duke rooters, however, expect the elusive Boyd Brumbaugh to match Buivid, and point out that Duquesne's captain and center, Mike Basrak, does nothing better than spill aspiring all-Americans all over the terrain.

Night Baseball For St. Louis In 1937 Season

(International News Service) ST. LOUIS, Nov. 21.—Major league night baseball will be inaugurated here next season with an exhibition game between the St. Louis Browns and the Cardinals, Sam Breadon, president of the Cardinals, revealed today. The date of the game has not been set.

The Browns, who are in the process of being taken over by a syndicate of wealthy business men headed by Donald L. Barnes, were recently granted permission by American league club owners to play night baseball here. The National league allows its members to play a limited number of night games each season if they desire to do so.

McLarnin Hands Ambers Licking In Garden Ring

Jimmy McLarnin Will Probably Get Another Chance At Welter Title

By LAWTON CARVER
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Nov. 21.—Another chance at the world welterweight championship which he twice has held in more than a decade of battling on the big time, beckoned today to Jimmy McLarnin, a tender-looking old man of 30, who last night whipped Lou Ambers through 10 blood and thrill-soaked rounds at Madison Square Garden.

Considering that the match was characteristic of the Celt's career, through which it has been the policy to give nothing and take everything, including all the pull in the weights that the law would stand, the victory might not be too impressive.

But against the eight-pound handicap under which Ambers fought at 136½, you have the fact that he is the current lightweight champion and therefore something of a master in his own right, and, moreover, had a 10-year edge on the calendar.

The answer seems to be that they will have to refuse to sell McLarnin a wheel chair to eventually get him out of circulation for good.

Bloody Battle.
After Tony Canzoneri whipped him awhile back, he was checked off the list and washed up. But he evened that one a few weeks ago and followed through last night with an exhibition of boxing skill and punching ruthlessness that converted the most sedate members of a $32,000 crowd of 10,229 into a well-lathered frenzy. They witnessed a bloody mess.

It started in the first round, when Ambers ripped open the bridge on McLarnin's nose. Thereafter McLarnin settled down to reality bringing on the bloodshed by pounding Ambers' nose out of shape and inflicting other minor wounds.

The first round was close enough to be called even. Ambers might have been credited with winning two of the rest, while all the others went to McLarnin, who came within a punch or two of scoring a knockout in the sixth and seventh.

After that Ambers just barely could get his hands up to make the sign of the cross as he came out of his corner.

The word fan, in the sense of an enthusiast over baseball, football, radio, or any other sport, amusement or entertainment is modern and is supposed to be a contraction of fanatic.

Father And Sons Banquet On Friday

Annual Bridge Builders Banquet Is Impressive Event At First Presbyterian

ELLWOOD CITY, Nov. 21.—The annual Bridge Builders banquet attracted 140 fathers and sons Friday evening in the First Presbyterian church when they honored Thomas Jefferson.

The affair opened by observing the customary bridge ritual and was led by Thomas Jefferson himself. He was assisted by George B. Wilson, Robert Jones, Chester Wilson, and Robert Mackasek. All were then seated at the tables. Pep singing during the evening was in charge of David Aiken with Robert Stevenson as the accompanist.

A business meeting took place at which the annual election of officers was held and resulted as follows: president, D. W. Stinson; vice president, Berlin Smith; secretary, Robert Jones; treasurer, Walter Simpson. Mr. Aiken as a former vice-president presided.

Jones as a future bridge builder made a response to the address.

South Hills Hi Tops Allegheny In Playoff Game

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—South Hills high school's griders won a double-edged victory today by trouncing Allegheny high school 13 to 6 and thereby winning the right to meet Westinghouse for the city title.

When South Hills and Allegheny ended the season in a tie, city school officials, a bit unmindful of just how important a football championship can loom in the minds of high school students, flipped a coin and declared Allegheny the winner. South Hills students went on strike and the beleaguered school officials finally consented to a post-season game. And today South Hills won, vindicating the contention of the strikers that theirs was the better team.

E. AND A. VETS GATHER HERE FOR REUNION

When Harry Gormley ran the yard, the days when the checker on the E. & P. local was a king in his own right. The days when Uncle John Leonardson was a power in the dispatcher's office, the days when the big interlocking plant was put in at Ashtabula, all of them came in for reminiscences today and the food, the oratory and the music took second place to the one thing that marks these reunions, memories.

Open With America. After laying away a turkey dinner that would have been ample for a section hand on an overtime job, the guests sat back with their cigars to enjoy the program. The New Castle senior high school orchestra was present and livened up the periods between courses with melodies that had a lot of feet tapping. The program had opened with Richard E. Johns directing the crowd in singing "America" and then Mr. Lally introduced Hon. W. Walter Braham, judge of the courts of Lawrence county.

In his varied experience that went from a laborer in a brickyard up through service as a soldier, a brief experience as a Chautauqua lecturer, a school teacher and then a lawyer, Judge Braham couldn't include any railroad experience. But that didn't deter him from making an address that got a "highball" from the veterans. It was the kind of an address that fitted in beautifully with the general scheme of things, and after listening to it the vets might have thought that the judge had at one time been a "shack" over on the hump or had tried to thaw an interlocking switch on a sub-zero night in January.

Memorial Service. Following the address of Judge Braham the annual memorial service was held. As the names of the 22 departed veterans were called, little Miss Ruth Fehl, daughter of Movement Director Frank R. Fehl, placed a rose in a compartment of a board which when completed formed the numerals "22". It was an impressive service and as the bell tolled the memory of each veteran, the veterans who were at the banquet table last year but had reported into the eternal terminal since.

This concluded the formal part of the program but it didn't conclude the day. Th veterans sat around the table renewing acquaintances, refreshing memories and having the same sort of a time to which they look forward from one November to the next. Officers were elected for the coming year and these will be found in Monday's News.

The list of veterans who passed on during the past 12 months follows:

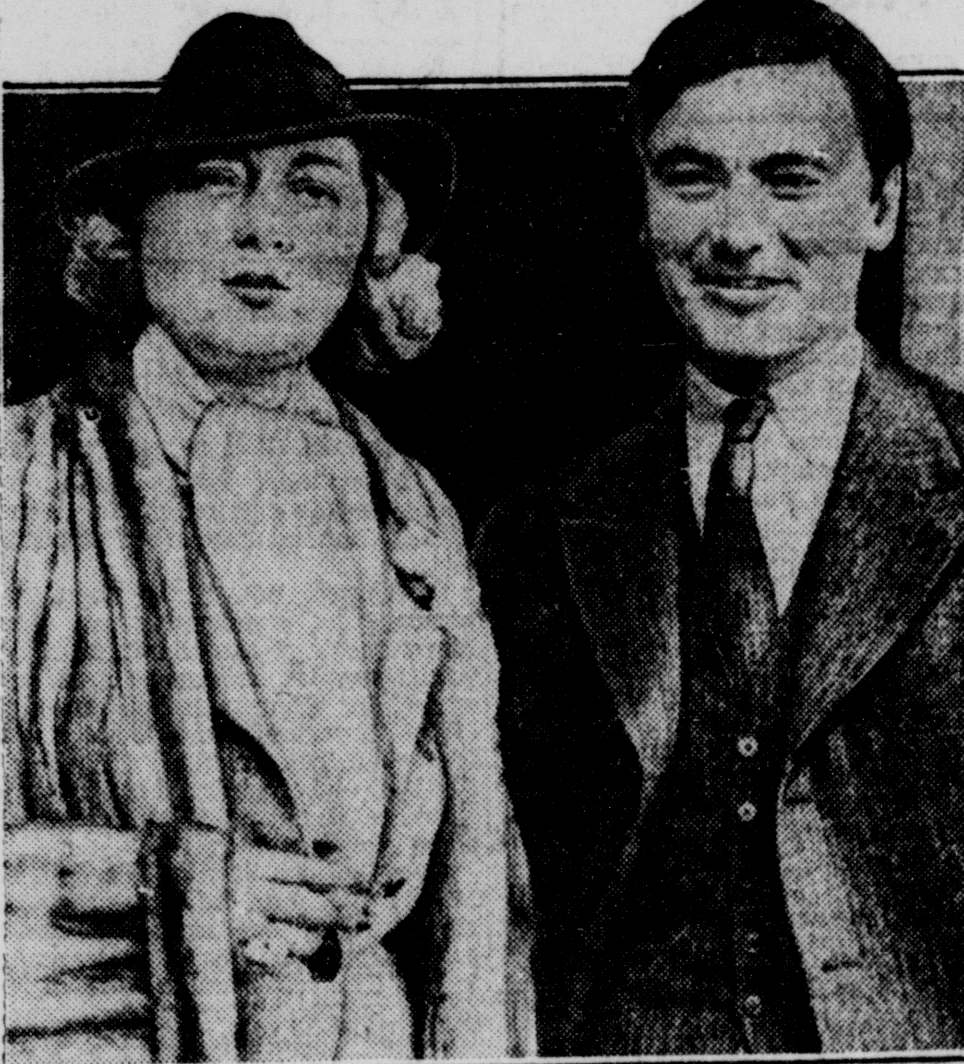

- C. L. Zimmerman—Engineman, Youngstown, O., Dec. 21, 1935.

Man Is Wounded By His Own Gun

(International News Service)

BUTLER, Pa., Nov. 21.—William S. Murdick, 35, was in the Butler county hospital today because he tried to kill two birds with one stone, as the saying goes.

Murdick, according to hospital attaches, placed his gun on the floor of his tractor while working on his farm at Fennelton with the idea of bagging any small game that might be dislodged by the noise of the machine. A jolt knocked the gun to the ground where it was accidentally discharged, the charge striking Murdick in the leg and knee.

Searchers dig for buried treasure in Wichita alley

An alley behind a downtown store in Wichita, Kas., is the scene of a treasure hunt. Money and jewels valued at $30,000, stolen and then secreted by two burglars who robbed and killed Mrs. Margaret Griffin, an aged recluse, in February, 1935, are the object of the search. The hunt was ordered when

James O'Shea, apprehended in California, pleaded guilty to the robbery and slaying and disclosed the hiding place. The searchers, left to right, are A. D. Brown, O'Shea (brought back from the state prison under guard), County Attorney Sidney Foulston, Edward Rooney, O'Shea's attorney, and helpers. —Central Press

WASHINGTON AT A GLANCE

Lower Prices To Keep Up Output

Institute Claims That Price Reduction Will Cure Over-Production

NO NEED FOR NEW PRODUCTS

Central Press Washington Bureau 602 Times-Herald Bldg. By CHARLES P. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Brookings Institution seems to me to have hit on a great truth in its conclusion that price reduction is the cure for so-called over-production, due, it generally is represented, to the mechanization and speeding up of industry.

Faster work with fewer hands to do it, necessarily implies lowered manufacturing costs, the Brookings folk argue, conclusively, I would think.

Now, who gets the benefit of these economies?

The manufacturer or the buyer? In a few lines the consumer has benefited in cut prices. Notably has this been the case in the automobile industry. There the corporations manufacturing lower-priced cars have profited enormously from the huge demand.

BROOKINGS' CONCLUSIONS

But, in the main, the Brookings Institution's investigators find, the manufacturer has tried to gobble the benefit of reduced production costs in the form of higher profits, without much regard for labor's interest and without a bit of regard for the consumer's.

True, labor has had some wage increases recently.

Such labor leaders as John L. Lewis assert, to be sure, that these increases have been insufficient ("miserly," in fact) and that they have not been in the nature of concessions; that they are, instead, counter attacks against labor's organization campaign. Still, they are a moderately gratifying form of counter attacks.

BUYING PRICES RISE

The consumer, however, has been more than left out of consideration; his buying prices are rising.

Not as to lower priced automobiles, but as to most things. I know, as to my own household expenses. Rentals are higher. Fuel costs more. Suits of hand-me-down clothes are advertised up to $60 each as compared with $10 to $20 less for the same goods, even in boom times.

F. D. R.'S DOUBTS

And labor, of course, is consumer-dom.

What good does it do a steel worker, for example, to get a few per cent increase in wages, if his living costs are advanced a couple of times that many per cent?

President Roosevelt raised this point, in effect, in a recent press conference.

Perhaps it seemed ungracious in him to pooh-pooh a wage increase, but it wasn't so ungracious in him to question whether or not living costs are advancing disproportionately.

LOGICAL?

Industry has the curious idea that sales, in order to be stimulated, need to have new supposed necessities of life (like inexpensive cars), invented, to tempt the buying public to invest in them, mostly on the installment plan.

I have heard this theory advanced repeatedly—that folk have now all of what they want; that something NEW that they want must be hit on to revitalize the market.

The fact is, of course, that they haven't got all that they want of what already is available.

If they can't get THAT, of what use is a new invention?

The Brookings Institution is supposed to be reactionary. So be it. I think it is logical.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

GIVES UP ALCOHOL

SEVERAL MONTHS ago I wrote some confessions in regard to liquor. I said that following repeal of the Eighteenth amendment I looked upon beer as soft drink and took an occasional glass with pleasure and good conscience, but that there came a time when I concluded that I would myself be safer and would be more useful to my fellow-men if I abstained completely. I resolved to do so and, to date, have lived up to this resolution.

While I have no quarrel with others who use liquor, so long as they do not get drunk, I believe there is only one safe and wise course for me to pursue, and not only for my sake, but for my children's sake also.

In that article I said that I believed that parents who really have concern that their children may abstain from strong drink, might well consider the nature of "signing the pledge themselves."

A number of letters came in response to that article. Here is one: "Dear Dr. Myers: Rather frequently I read your articles in the child study column of my newspaper.

Gets Signatures For Pledge

"Your article in last Wednesday's number on pledge signing appealed to me, because our Sunday school had recently authorized me to proceed with getting signatures in our school to such a pledge. I strove earnestly for the Eighteenth amendment, and always believed there was less drinking and drunkenness under that regime than any other.

However, as you stated, maybe it was born ahead of time. The propaganda against it, begun by those whose business had been seriously curtailed by its enforcement, endeavored to get their own way of living for the welfare of others—this together with the let-down of temperance instruction in school, church and home, resulted in a vast number of people coming to believe, as you said you did, that repeal would be better than prohibition. I believe you were honest and sincere, but—please pardon me—you were deceived.

"Now we have to go back and take up the crusade—having lost the progress of one or maybe two generations. "I thank God that you and many others are beginning to see the light. And may his blessing rest on what you may, can, and, I believe, will do, to reveal it to others.

"I believe we need an intensive education program, a restriction of liquor advertising, and the development of a conviction of the harmfulness of the stuff. Inclosed you will find the pledge we are using. "Hope I may meet you some day."

And I would like to meet him.

A fine little inexpensive booklet has appeared entitled, "Alcohol Talks to Youth." It is not sentimental, being written by a scientist, Howard E. Hamlin, assistant professor of physiology, Ohio State University. I understand that it is being used in many public schools. I wish it might be placed in the hand of every boy and girl above the age of eight or ten.

On Court House Hill

Motion for judgment for want of an affidavit of defense, was granted by Judge James A. Chambers at court today in the case of John Vati against Mary Vati and Jack Steinbrink.

Judgment for want of an appearance was granted by Judge Chambers in the case of the First National Bank of New Castle, and Mabel E. Emery executor in the estate of the late Judge S. Plummer Emery, against Louis Hanna, surviving obligor.

County Commissioners have received word from the state highway department that the state will replace the Garrett bridge across the Little Neshaunook creek on the New Wilmington Volant road. The old bridge is too light for present traffic, and is too narrow. The new bridge will have an 18 foot cartway. It is proposed to straighten the channel of the stream above the bridge and the county commissioners are expected to pay the damage, if any.

For the second time since the present three day marriage license law went into effect, Judge Chambers has granted a couple the right to marry forthwith upon the granting of the marriage license. Ed. I. Rehille came here from Tampa, Florida to wed Alice E. Kinsinger of 42 North Beaver street. Mr. Re-hill had to be back in Florida within a certain time, and asked the court to allow him and Miss Kinsinger to marry without the three day wait. There is a provision in the law that gives the court jurisdiction to use its discretion in abrogating its provisions.

A former resident of this city who has been working out in Illinois for the past two years was outlasting his troubles to Deputy Sheriff Elmer Taylor yesterday. This young man was born in Lawrence county. His parents and relatives live here. He was unable to get work in New Castle and about two years ago went out to Illinois, where he has since had work. Recently he was thrown out of employment and not being able to find anything to do, he came back to New Castle, expecting, if he was unable to find employment in industry, he would be able to get on the WPA. He was unable to get a job in private employment, and when he went to the WPA he says that he was told that he has lost his eligibility here, not having resided in the state within the past year. He is now in a quandry to know what to do.

Considerable has been heard here about the "low rent housing" proposition at Meadville, but according to a local mechanic who has been working in Meadville the rents for these houses are pretty high, compared with rents in New Castle. So far 202 houses have been erected, four, five and six rooms each. There are eleven houses that rent for $46 a month, 63 of which the rental is $42.50 a month, 48 on which the rental is $38.50. All of these houses have six rooms and bath. There are 28 houses of five rooms and bath renting for $37.50 and 28 renting for $36.00. Twelve four room houses with bath rent for $30 each, and twenty four and one-half room houses rent for $32.50 each. In order to get this "low rent project" the people of Meadville put up $212,000, and the Meadville Housing Corporation borrowed from the Pennsylvania State Workmens Insurance fund, $800,000. The amount of the loan is about 80 per cent of the cost of construction, which makes a pretty close loan.

Sees Time When U. S. Will Divide Huge Gold Hoard

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The time when the United States will divide its gold hoard of more than $11,000,000,000 with other nations was foreseen today by Senator Elmer Thomas (D) of Oklahoma.

The division, he said, will come about when the United States and the principal foreign nations agree to stabilize currencies of the world. The United States has $11,105,000,000 gold, more than half the amount in the world, and 2,000,000 ounces of silver, over 20 per cent of the world supply.

"The stocks have greater value as a war chest, as a base for money and as a basis for stabilization of currencies, to that we can reallocate gold and silver to other nations," he said. "I do not think that people would object to the division if they understood its purpose."

RETAIL PRICE OF GASOLINE DROPS DOWN ONE CENT

(International News Service) PITTSBURGH, Nov. 21.—The retail price of gasoline was reduced one cent Friday by all major oil corporations, thus matching Thursday's cutting of one cent per gallon on the wholesale product.

For a time earlier in the day it appeared the retail price would not be reduced, causing some confusion among both company-managed and independent dealers.

Rumors of an impending gas price war were discounted by Standard Oil, Gulf and other big refiners, but some privately owned stations in this area were reported planning slightly deeper price cuts.

My New York By James Aswell

Copyright, 1936, Central Press Association

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—It is necessary at intervals to write a column on this theme if for no other reason than to save postage. For I get more letters asking me about how to get in on the writing racket than on any other one subject.

Of course, not all of them are phrased as indelicately as that. Many speak of the career of beautiful letters as an avocation or ask where, for a minimum of time and effort, a workable knowledge of the craft can be obtained. What are the best correspondence schools and who are the ranking professors of short story technique?

Once I did a short piece on Bob Miller, the man who has become rich turning out scores of "pop" songs a week, many on topical subjects. The result was a flood of requests for Mr. Miller's address, each with the confession that the writer was in a position to supply words for songs in quantity.

Not a single correspondent offered verse for songs or asked where verse-writers could be found to collaborate. All of the ambitious folk were poets. This is significant.

In the same way would-be writers have plenty of "plots." All they need is the tissue and ribbons of correct verbiage in which to offer them to the world. No one ever says, "I can write well enough, but I can never think of anything to write about." They have the verses, in other words, and can devise additional happy sentiments by the yard, but they need the clear, sharp, palpable music necessary to set them off properly.

And the music, in both cases, is the important commodity. I think failure to recognize this simple fact is what causes a great many people to waste much good time and money annually on "schools" and "short-cut courses in the short story." The plots, which they have in such quantity and which lead them to believe they should embrace the most onerous career on earth, really are worth about a dime a dozen. They are the cores of the apples—necessary, but not the edible, salable meat.

There are many academies of composition, some bearing the apparent stamp of approval of established authors. The courses they offer may well improve the grammar of the students. And they may be well worth the cost in fun. I can believe that young writers, enrolling in them, may learn enough of the fundamentals of good usage to turn the scales from rejections to acceptances.

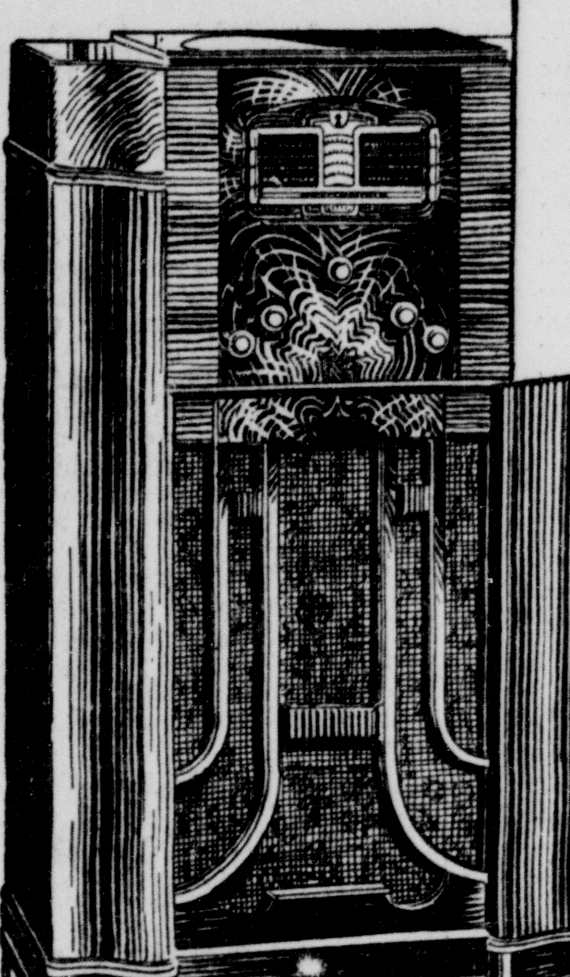

But the professors in these schools puzzle me. Many of them claim to be professional authors and to have sold to the big magazines. Their names rarely evoke instant recognition from the covers of national monthlies; but if their claims are valid, then what are they doing in another profession, less interesting, obviously less well paid and certainly less satisfying than the one in which they qualified?

The schools, and I am constantly assured that there are excellent ones, can teach syntax, the preparation of manuscripts and the avoidance of the themes commonly tabooed by magazine editors. These services alone should make them, in many cases, worth the fees they charge. But I think that a writer should learn these things before he is even in a position to decide whether he wants to enter the writing profession as a full-time business.

There is also the matter of agents. Many readers ask about the ten percenters and suggest that the sponsorship of a good agent might help sell their work, hitherto rejected. I much doubt it. As has been pointed out before in this space, an agent rarely sells anything; his job is to get better prices and better terms for writers who already are able to sell on their own.

And that, folks, is all I have been able to learn about the writing racket, after having run with the mob for fifteen years.

Call Halt On PWA Program

No More Allotments After President Group Of Projects Are Given Approval

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The $300,000,000 WPA program was brought to a definite halt today, at least until congress determines its future course.

After the list of projects approved by President Roosevelt is announced, no new allotments are expected because of the requirement of the current work-relief act that all projects started must be completed by July 1 next. Of the more than $300,000,000 worth of projects submitted to the president several weeks ago, only a little more than $1,000,000 worth met the time-limit requirement.

Col. Horatio B. Hackett, deputy WPA administrator, admitted the program, as far as new projects are concerned, has come to a halt, except for the list approved by the president before his departure for South America.

Many of those who boast that they are self-made, relieve their parents of an awful responsibility.
